

A view of the President's bedroom at Buckingham Palace. He and Mrs. Wilson occupied the suite reserved for visiting royalty, where most of the crowned heads of Europe have slept.

Photo by General News Service.

The President's sitting room. The whole apartment is richly furnished with rare works of art and furniture, much of it having historical associations. The paintings are said to be especially fine.

Photo by General News Service.

President Wilson at Carlisle, his mother's birthplace, shaking hands with Thomas Watson, aged 90, only surviving member of the Sunday school taught by the President's grandfather, Dr. Woodrow.

Copyright, International Film Service.

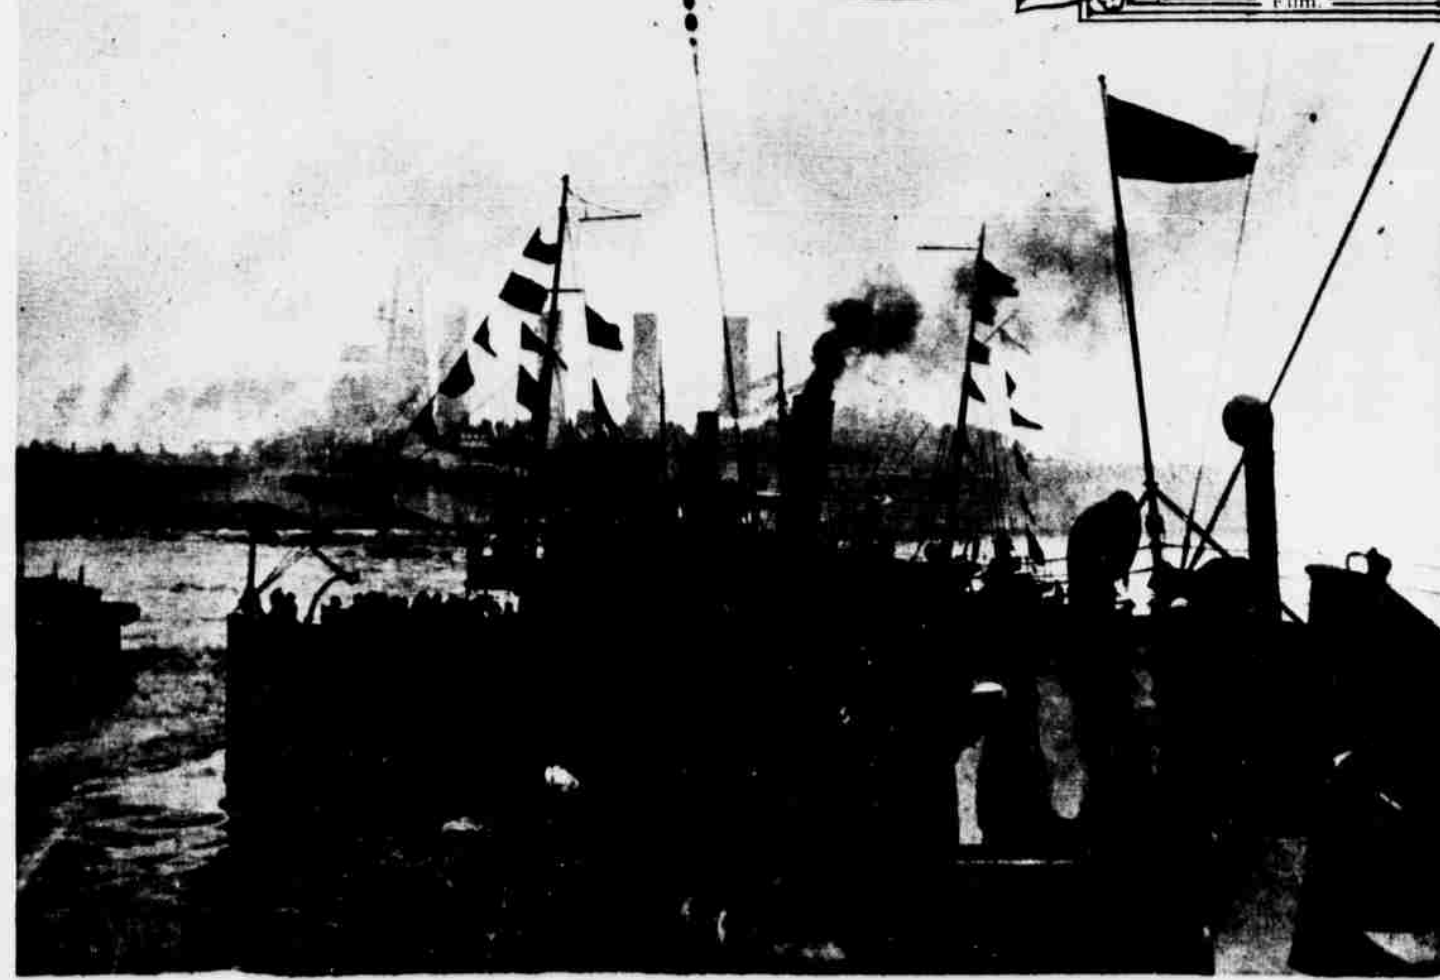

The house at Carlisle where the President's mother was born and to which the Wilsons paid a visit.

Copyright, International Film Service.

Above—Doughboys enjoying themselves with a burlesque parade for the ex-Kaiser's five sons. Below—Smith College girls in France joy riding in a whippet tank.

Photos, International Film.

Welcoming the U. S. cruisers South Dakota and Montana as they arrived from Brest on January 18, bringing thousands of returning soldiers. Warships are being used extensively to ferry the men back.

Copyright, International Film Service.